1.  sketch of the barracks of the First Engineer Regiment and an unidentified artillery regiment near Sofia.  25X1
2. The barracks in the sketch is located on the southern outskirts of Sofia east of the Sofia-Dragalevtsi road. Gun powder magazines were formerly located here. The First Engineer Regiment occupies the eastern part of the camp area and an unidentified artillery regiment is based on the western side.  25X1
3. The engineer regiment numbered about 40 officers, 80 non-coms, and 500 enlisted men in 1954. It was made up of two battalions, trained primarily in mine laying and demolitions work, and a technical company responsible for machine materials and supply. Commander of the regiment was a lieutenant colonel. Political commander was a Major Purvanov (fnu). There were no Soviet advisors with the unit.  25X1
4. The summer camp of the regiment was in Pancharevo Village, Sofia City. The old camp site is now under water as a result of the construction of Pancharevo Dam. The new camp (located at N42 36, E23.24) was 400 meters west of the old camp and on the western side of the Pancharevo mineral baths. In 1945 the camp had no permanent buildings.  25X1
5. Legend for the attached sketch is:
No. 1 - Control point "KPP" (Kontrolno-Propuskatelen Punkt). A one-story brick building painted yellow, about 4 x 4 meters in size, with a tile roof. There is one sentry on duty day and night.
